Perhaps one of the most recognizable names in the art business — locally and internationally — is David Castillo. The art historian and gallerist studied at Yale University and first opened his gallery in Miami in 2005. Although the space's physical location has moved a handful of times — it's currently in the Design District — Castillo's commitment to showcasing impeccable art has never wavered. The Cuban-American gallerist is no stranger to the immigrant tale, which might explain his penchant for showcasing artists who tell stories of identity through their work. On view through November 13 are works by artists Glexis Novoa, Emilio Martinez, and Katie Gillmore.
